EATING IN CORSO GARIBALDI

13th June 2014 | saucemilan | Advice, Restaurants, The Sauce | Corso Garibaldi, Food Milan, Milan Restaurants

From piazzas, to statues, streets and one of the city's biggest train stations, it seems everywhere you go in Italy, you'll find something named "Garibaldi." And Milan is no different. Who or what is Garibaldi?, you might find yourself wondering more times than once, and we have an answer for you: Giuseppe Garibaldi was one of the four prominent figures of the Risorgimento the Italian Unification. In addition to Stazione Garibaldi, one of Milan's major train stations, you'll also find Corso Garibaldi. It starts on Via Pontaccio in the Brera area (not too far from the Lanza metro) and extends to Piazza XXV Aprile, where Eataly Smeraldo stands. The lovely thoroughfare offers a charm that's well, quintessentially Milan! Given its close proximity to the Brera, you'll find some great places to eat here if you're in the 'hood.

Here are some of our picks.

- PARMA & CO
- OSTERIA DEI POETI
- OSTERIA BRUNELLO
- BENTO
- RADETZKY CAFÉ
